About Me

I am currently a full stack developer with three years of hands-on experience. I have done several projects that you can see on my GitHub, and more regularly on my portfolio website, with all the details: my skills, my projects and my communication channels.

Portfolio

I have created a portfolio website, which is the main place where I share my work.

Experience

Archivira — Frontend Developer

6 months at a Canadian multi-platform startup offering architectural services. I developed it with Next.js 14 along with various other tools. The main challenge was securing the admin portal and user account management, using server actions across different parts of the website.

Kasbino — Frontend Developer

I worked for 8 months on a management dashboard and developed a drag-and-drop tool for building UI, which served as a UI Builder for management dashboards. The main challenge was controlling and managing the drag-and-drop elements without using pre-built packages.

Dideban — Full Stack Developer

A tool for the Divar platform that intelligently notifies users about new listings and important updates (such as price or description changes). Notifications are delivered via chat and push alerts, providing a fast experience without the need for constant searching.

Solop — Full Stack Developer

A platform for creating online stores with features to manage orders, products, users and payment gateways. It includes an AI assistant and a store agent that make buying and selling smarter and easier for both customers and vendors.
